I have been thinking about you a lot lately, and how much I love you. A little while ago, I was sitting at my desk, looking at some papers, and I suddenly remembered the first time we met. It was so long ago now, but it feels like yesterday. I remember the way you looked, the way you smiled, and how everything felt so new and exciting. I wish I could go back to that moment again, just to see you and feel your arms around me.

Life has been busy lately, but I always find time to think about the people who matter most to me. You are one of those people. You are my heart, my soul, and my everything. I hope you are doing well and happy. Please write back soon and let me hear from you. I miss you so much.

Your loving partner,
John Doe

The figure is a schematic representation of the experimental design, showing the sequence of events for two groups: T (Training) and C (Control). The diagram is organized into two main horizontal sections, one for each group. Each section contains a timeline of events represented by arrows and text labels. In the T group section, the sequence starts with a stimulus (represented by a vertical bar), followed by a PRC (Pre-Recorded) stimulus (represented by a vertical bar), and then a response (represented by a vertical bar). In the C group section, the sequence starts with a stimulus (represented by a vertical bar), followed by a PRC stimulus (represented by a vertical bar), and then a response (represented by a vertical bar). The diagram illustrates the timing and sequence of these events for both groups.
